SCIOTO RECEDES AFTER FLOODING LOWLAND REGION

Contractor's Work, West Of River, Delayed During Rise Of Stream

TWO HIGHWAYS COVERED

Ohio Out Of Danger; Chicago
Awaits Storm; Monday's Toll 18

The Scioto river was receding
Wednesday afternoon after reaching a 14 foot stage at the W. Main street bridge. Dr. H. R. Clarke, Circleville's weather recorder, reported the stream reached its peak.
The river flooded lowlands Tuesday afternoon.

The Lewis & Freisinger Co., contractor on the Route 22 improvement west of Circleville, said work on the project was suspended due to high water but no damage had been caused by the flood waters.
The waters did not reach the top of the old highway by three feet, company officials said.

Two Roadways Covered
The state highway department reported the river flooded the Mackey Ford road Tuesday night but traffic was not detoured. The stream had receded from the highway Wednesday.

Darby creek flooded Route 104 at Dewey Park, but no detour was necessary.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 1—Despite predictions of rain and warmer weather for today, there is little danger of the Ohio river reaching its flood stage of 52 feet, according to W. C. Devereaux, meteorologist.

Rising at the rate of .3 of a foot an hour last night, present indications are that a crest of 41 or 42 feet may be expected tomorrow or Friday. The stage at present is approximately 37 feet.

Rapid rise of the river at this point was attributed by weather bureau officials to moderately heavy rain in the Ohio valley during the last few days and to melting snow in the mountains of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Two Reach Crests

Devereaux based his predictions on weather conditions and on the fact that both the Little and Big Miami rivers have reached their crest. The Little Miami reached a crest of 15 feet, two below flood stage, at Kings Mills, Warren county, O., Monday. The Big Miami was recorded at nearly 8 feet at Dayton last night and was reporting to be dropping. Flood stage at Dayton is 21 feet.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1—Just emerging from the most intense blizzard

House Votes Relief; Labor Hits Ripper

His Jobless Check First

FIRST benefit check under Ohio's new unemployment compensation law goes to Stanley C. Fox of Columbus, O. The check was for $11.50, a trifle above the estimated average of benefit checks. It represented one-half Fox's average weekly wage. Under Ohio's new "job insurance" law, the worker earns his right to out-of-work benefits by being employed in 20 different weeks during the last 52 employer-covered by the act. After the worker files for a claim, he waits three weeks before the first check is issued. If no job is found by the employment service division in that time, he receives his check.

Commerce for 1939 were announced Tuesday night at the meeting of the Retail Merchants association.

Parrett, Jr., T. O. Gilliland, George
Griffith, Carl Hunter, James I.
Smith, Jr., and R. L. Brehmer.
Messrs. Hunter and Griffith are new directors.

Directors are elected by the membership from fourteen nominated by members and a nominating committee.

Annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the New American Hotel.

H. C. RENICK NEW TIMEKEEPER AT COUNTY GARAGE

The first change in the personnel at the Circleville garage of the state highway department was announced Wednesday.

Henry C. Renick, Pontius Lane, former mayor of Circleville and father of T. A. Renick, chairman of the Republican executive committee, assumed his duties as timekeeper succeeding L. T. Shaner, E. Union street. The appointment was made by G. C. Clemment, of Delaware, division engineer. No other changes in the department have been announced.

The appointment of Mr. Renick is believed the first of numerous changes to be made in various state operated departments of the county.

Although many indorsements for various state positions have been made by the Republican executive committee, members voted not to reveal the indorsements until appointments were made.

DONNELLY, OWENS TALK

Unions Force Postponement
Of Hearing On Revision
Of Unemployment Board

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—The house committee on mines voted unanimously today to recommend passage of the Marshall-Paskell bill which would provide that only Ohio-mined coal be used in state supported institutions.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—Administration-supported house leadership celebrated another victory in the interests of Republican harmony today as the senate received the $5,000,000 poor relief bill for a vote when the session opened this afternoon.

The relief bill will go to the senate floor substantially as it was sent from the house despite a move in the senate taxation committee to effect three-months moratorium in the dollar-for-dollar matching provision.

An amendment offered by Sen.
Horace S. Keifer (R-Springfield) was adopted by the committee which would have required counties that have no matching money to pay their share of relief in May and June only.

Amendment Tabled

Under the urging of Speaker
William M. McCulloch and Republican Majority Leader J. Harry Mc-Gregor the committee reconsidered the action, which would have slashed the six months relief program from $10,000,000 to $6,250,000, and eventually tabled the amendment.

Sens. Don R. Thomas (D-Dayton) Thomas L. Gallagher (D-Cleveland) and Robert H. Hoffman
(R-Columbus) opposed the reconsideration motion, but Hoffman voted with seven other committee members to recommend the bill for passage.

A breathing spell was afforded urban communities who had fought

73 year old dean of the senate in years of service, today was taken

NEW U. S. PLANE, MYSTERY CRAFT, GOES INTO AIR

MARCH FIELD, Cal., Feb. 1— A U. S. army mystery plane with special engine superchargers for subtroposphere operation was in the hangars at March field today.

The big flying fortress was flown to the field from Seattle, and will probably be ferried to Wright field in Dayton, Ohio, today.

Utmost secrecy surrounded manufacture of the plane at Seattle, its completion was announced only yesterday, when the plane left the northern city.

The plane is identical in size and structure with the Boeing B-17 flying fortresses now in army service, has a top speed of 250 miles an hour and a cruising range of 3,000 miles. It can fly at an altitude of 22,000 feet and possibly much higher.

BODY OF THIRD VICTIM CARRIED FROM ZINC MINE

PICHER, Okla., Feb. 1—The body of a third victim of the caved-in southern zinc mine, Oral Campbell, 33, of Galena, Kas., was recovered today as sixty rescue workers dug for two other trapped men.

H. C. Snodgrass, Kansas district mine inspector, said there was no hope that the two would be found alive. Digging parties, he said found they had probably been buried under tons of the loose rock.

A crew of forty were working in the mine at the time. All but the seven in the drift where the cavein occurred escaped unharmed.
Two of the remaining number wriggled free and reached safety despite severe injuries.

DANGER OF NEW OHIO TAX HEARD

Floor Leader McGregor Says Earmarked Funds Must Be Released

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—Threats of new taxes were hurled today by Majority Floor Leader J. Harry McGregor as the house taxation committee met to consider his bill which would terminate earmarking of county revenue and facilitate transfer of money from one fund to another.

"We are either going to have to release earmarked funds," Mc-Gregor said, "or else levy new taxes. And we don't want to levy new taxes."

County commissioners and county engineers from every section of the state appeared in committee to oppose McGregor's measure, claiming it would break down their system of government.

But McGregor, pointing to administration backing, tried to quiet their opposition, saying:

"There is from $17,000,000 to $19,000,000 lying idle in county treasuries. It could be used for emergency legislation such as relief."

"We are not telling you that you must transfer funds, we are telling you that you may transfer funds for your own good. The bill is not worded to compel but to allow.
We are giving your own local taxing authority the power to transfer."

MOTOR TRAFFIC TO CHILlicothe FACES DETOUR

Traffic between Circleville and Chillicothe will be detoured around the Bridge street bridge on Route 23 in Chillicothe for a week or more after Feb. 6. The detour is necessary for the installation of a new floor in the bridge. Traffic will be taken over N. High street in Chillicothe, Route 104, and the Kellenberger bridge.

Ross county will furnish planks for the improvement, to be made by state highway department employees. A new bridge on the highway is one of the early projects on the division of highways construction program in Ross county.

Earlier plans were to close the bridge to traffic on Wednesday. A postponement was asked until Feb. 6 so the alternate route can be shown on the detour map to be released Feb. 3.

The bridge floor was improved in 1926 and a coating of composition flooring placed on it. This composition did not last long and the floor was given a covering of black top. Movement of sub-flooring pieces caused the black top to give way.

DADS' STUDY ASSESSMENTS

Preparation of a schedule of assessments for the operation of the new disposal plant will be before gineer on the project, was instructed to prepare a suggested schedule to be applied to industrial plants. No legislation has been ordered for the meeting. Carl C.

Leist, solicitor, said.

Six Killed As Flames Ruin Homes

Cleveland Rooming House Blaze Drives Many
Into Night

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1—Four persons were burned to death today when fire swept a rooming house on Cleveland's west side.

Five persons were taken to city hospital with serious burns, and 16 others were forced to flee in their nightclothes. Six of those who escaped were carried from the house by firemen.

Those burned to death were a mother and her two children and a 17 year old boy.

The mother, identified as Mrs.
Elizabeth Smith, and one of her sons, Junior, 2, were still alive when firemen reached them, but died shortly after being taken to city hospital. The other child, Everett Smith, 5, and the youth, who was unidentified, were dead
when firemen found their bodies.

When firemen arrived at the scene, they found the second floor in flames and six occupants of the house trapped on a second floor porch from which they were carried on ladders.

The unidentified boy and the mother and her two sons were found by firemen in their second floor rooms where they apparently had been trapped by the flames.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 1—

TOTAL OF BONDED DEBT IN COUNTY SET AT $823,090

County Auditor Forrest Short completed the abstract Wednesday of bonded debt in Pickaway county as of Dec. 31, which shows a total of $823,090.75 outstanding.
This is an increase of $15,402.75
since Jan. 1, 1938, when the outstanding bonded debt of the various subdivisions of the county was $807,688.

The county, villages and city school indebtedness shows a reduction while increases were noted in the township schools and Circleville city debt due to new bond issues.

Total indebtedness outstanding in the various subdivisions was:
county, $63,000; villages, $76,500;
townships, none; city schools, $82-

GERMAN CAPITAL SILENT

Fierce Criticism Predicted
In Congress After Declaration

LONDON, Feb. 1—Reports of President Roosevelt's statement to members of the United States senate military committee that America should assist European democracies in arming against the totalitarian nations caused a sensation today in London diplomatic circles.

The move of the American president, timed to coincide with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's bid to Germany to prove her peaceful intentions by limiting armaments, was viewed as a bold move to check the ambitions of Europe's dictatorships.

This view was held here because of the known fact that both Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini are mindful of the effect of American material assistance to the democracies would have in any new European conflict.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—Official Washington rocked with repercussions today over President Roosevelt's disclosure of his foreign policy to a secret meeting of the senate military affairs committee. Legislators indignantly admitted they were bewildered over the series of secret meetings sponsored by administration chieftains, climaxed by the unprecedented action of the President in calling the military committee to the White House for an hour and a half discussion over the whole international picture.

British newspapers displayed reports of the President's action under streamer headlines which stressed his statement that France is the defense frontier of the United States, and that purchases of American warplanes by Britain

Devereaux Ducey. She came to Pickaway county in 1925. Mrs.
Valentine operated a beauty parlor prior to her marriage. She was married Jan. 20, 1934.

Surviving besides the husband are four brothers, Edward J., of Columbus, Walter B., of Plain

City, and Paul J., of Mt. Sterling,

Sullivan, Springfield, O., and Mrs.
Rose E. Pratt, of Columbus.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 9 a. m. in St. Joseph's Catholic church with the Rev. Fa-

SCIOTO RECEDES AFTER FLOODING LOWLAND REGION

Contractor's Work, West Of River, Delayed During Rise Of Stream

TWO HIGHWAYS COVERED

Ohio Out Of Danger; Chicago Awaits Storm; Monday's Toll 18

The Scioto river was receding Wednesday afternoon after reaching a 14 foot stage at the W. Main street bridge. Dr. H. R. Clarke, Circleville's weather recorder, reported the stream reached its peak. The river flooded lowlands Tuesday afternoon.

The Lewis & Freisinger Co., contractor on the Route 22 improvement west of Circleville, said work on the project was suspended due to high water but no damage had been caused by the flood waters. The waters did not reach the top of the old highway by three feet, company officials said.

Two Roadways Covered

The state highway department reported the river flooded the Mackey Ford road Tuesday night but traffic was not detoured. The stream had receded from the highway Wednesday.

Darby creek flooded Route 104 at Dewey Park, but no detour was necessary.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 1—Despite predictions of rain and warmer weather for today, there is little danger of the Ohio river reaching its flood stage of 52 feet, according to W. C. Devereaux, meteorologist.

Rising at the rate of .3 of a foot an hour last night, present indications are that a crest of 41 or 42 feet may be expected tomorrow or Friday. The stage at present is approximately 37 feet.

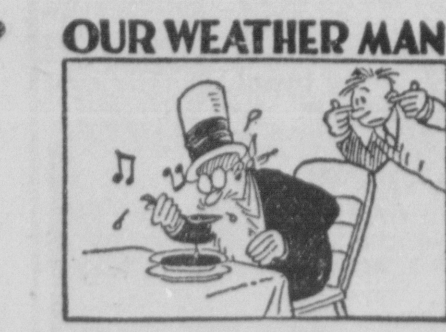

Rapid rise of the river at this point was attributed by weather bureau officials to moderately heavy rain in the Ohio valley during the last few days and to melting snow in the mountains of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Two Reach Crests

Devereaux based his predictions on weather conditions and on the fact that both the Little and Big Miami rivers have reached their crest. The Little Miami reached a crest of 15 feet, two below flood stage, at Kings Mills, Warren county, O., Monday. The Big Miami was recorded at nearly 8 feet at Dayton last night and was reporting to be dropping. Flood stage at Dayton is 21 feet.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1—Just emerging from the most intense blizzard in its history, Chicago today was threatened with another snowstorm.

It represented one-half Fox's average weekly wage. After the worker files for a claim, he waits three weeks before the first check is issued. If no job is found by the employment service division in that time, he receives his check.

H. C. RENICK NEW TIMEKEEPER AT COUNTY GARAGE

The first change in the personnel at the Circleville garage of the state highway department was announced Wednesday.

Henry C. Renick, Pontius Lane, former mayor of Circleville and father of T. A. Renick, chairman of the Republican executive committee, assumed his duties as timekeeper succeeding L. T. Shaner, E. Union street. The appointment was made by G. C. Clement, of Delaware, division engineer. No other changes in the department have been announced.

The appointment of Mr. Renick is believed the first of numerous changes to be made in various state operated departments of the county.

Although many indorsements for various state positions have been made by the Republican executive committee, members voted not to reveal the indorsements until appointments were made.

Unions Force Postponement Of Hearing On Revision Of Unemployment Board

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—The house committee on mines voted unanimously today to recommend passage of the Marshall-Paskell bill which would provide that only Ohio-mined coal be used in state supported institutions.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—Administration-supported house leadership celebrated another victory in the interests of Republican harmony today as the senate received the $5,000,000 poor relief bill for a vote when the session opened this afternoon.

The relief bill will go to the senate floor substantially as it was sent from the house despite a move in the senate taxation committee to effect three-months moratorium in the dollar-for-dollar matching provision.

An amendment offered by Sen. Horace S. Keifer (R-Springfield) was adopted by the committee which would have required counties that have no matching money to pay their share of relief in May and June only.

Amendment Tabled

Under the urging of Speaker William M. McCulloch and Republican Majority Leader J. Harry McGregor the committee reconsidered the action, which would have slashed the six months relief program from $10,000,000 to $6,250,000, and eventually tabled the amendment.

Sens. Don R. Thomas (D-Dayton) Thomas L. Gallagher (D-Cleveland) and Robert H. Hoffman (R-Columbus) opposed the reconsideration motion, but Hoffman voted with seven other committee members to recommend the bill for passage.

Loudly cheered by the chamber, the minister, Bundesrat J. Ringer, continued:

"Our army has been considerably reinforced in the last few years. It is now in a position to offer violent and efficacious opposition to any aggressor."

"We have an obligation to defend ourselves not only for our own generation but for our allies. Better death than slavery."

Utmost secrecy surrounded manufacture of the plane at Seattle, its completion was announced only yesterday, when the plane left the northern city.

The plane is identical in size and structure with the Boeing B-17 flying fortresses now in army service, has a top speed of 250 miles an hour and a cruising range of 3,000 miles. It can fly at an altitude of 22,000 feet and possibly much higher.

PICHER, Okla., Feb. 1—The body of a third victim of the caved-in southern zinc mine, Oral Campbell, 33, of Galena, Kas., was recovered today as sixty rescue workers dug for two other trapped men.

H. C. Snodgrass, Kansas district mine inspector, said there was no hope that the two would be found alive. Digging parties, he said, found they had probably been buried under tons of the loose rock.

A crew of forty were working in the mine at the time. All but the seven in the drift where the caving occurred escaped unharmed. Two of the remaining number wriggled free and reached safety despite severe injuries.

The mother, identified as Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, and one of her sons, Junior, 2, were still alive when firemen reached them, but died shortly after being taken to city hospital. The other child, Everett Smith, 5, and the youth, who was unidentified, were dead when firemen found their bodies.

When firemen arrived at the scene, they found the second floor in flames and six occupants of the house trapped on a second floor porch from which they were carried on ladders.

The unidentified boy and the mother and her two sons were found by firemen in their second floor rooms where they apparently had been trapped by the flames.

Fierce Criticism Predicted In Congress After Declaration

LONDON, Feb. 1—Reports of President Roosevelt's statement to members of the United States senate military committee that America should assist European democracies in arming against the totalitarian nations caused a sensation today in London diplomatic circles.

The move of the American president, timed to coincide with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's bid to Germany to prove her peaceful intentions by limiting armaments, was viewed as a bold move to check the ambitions of Europe's dictators.

This view was held here because of the known fact that both Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini are mindful of the effect of American material assistance to the democracies would have in any new European conflict.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—Official Washington rocked with repercussions today over President Roosevelt's disclosure of his foreign policy to a secret meeting of the senate military affairs committee. Legislators indignantly admitted they were bewildered over the series of secret meetings sponsored by administration chieftains, climaxed by the unprecedented action of the President in calling the military committee to the White House for an hour and a half discussion over the whole international picture.

British newspapers displayed reports of the President's action under streamer headlines which stressed his statement that France is the defense frontier of the United States, and that purchases of American warplanes by Britain (Continued on Page Two)

FRANCE SEEKS SUPERIORITY IN PURSUIT PLANE

Mass Production Under Way
With 'Fighting Fleas'
Getting Attention

300 MILES PER IS GOAL

Italy, Germany Watched As Hurried Building Continues

PARIS, Feb. 1.—France has developed a 300-mile-per-hour "flyer" pursuit plane to be produced under mass-production methods in an effort to offset the air superiority of Fascist Italy and Germany.

These flyer fighters, or "fighting fleas" as they have been christened by pilots, will augment the 100 American Curtiss P-36 pursuit planes, which are much larger and faster.

And, since the Air Ministry plans to put the "fighting fleas" into production in a number of factories, it became more apparent today that American military aircraft firms will receive more orders from France.

These orders will be based on the selected list of military planes, chosen by the Air Ministry as ideal American equipment, and financed by the new budget for air of nearly $400,000,000.

Mass-Production Approved

Believing that a highly maneuverable ship, capable of slightly over 300 miles per hour, stands a chance in aerial combat against heavier pursuit planes of faster speed, Air Minister Guy La Chambre has certified the mass-production of the new "fighting fleas," first produced by the Caudron Aviation works.

Although it was not announced, this correspondent was informed by Minister La Chambre that one of the factors playing a most important part in this decision was the revelation that all-metal pursuit planes, which are consequently heavier, larger and more expensive to build, suffer seriously from vibration when struck by bullets in spots not usually vital.

Consequently, the "fighting fleas" will be of wood and canvas construction, reinforced in sections taking the heaviest stress by duralumin (aluminum and steel).

Placing of Guns

Since these ships will oppose airplanes having a 50-mile-an-hour speed advantage, they have been made very small to be highly maneuverable and are armed with two 20 millimeter aerial cannons besides two 50 calibre machine guns. The cannons are mounted in the wings and the machine guns in the nose.

Completely equipped, the entire plane weighs only 2,700 pounds. It's secret of speed and excellent maneuverability lies in its short, clipped wings, short fuselage and excellent power derived from a three-bladed, controllable-pitch propeller throw by a comparatively small in-line motor—480 horsepower.

The original model was quoted by the government as a 285-mile-an-hour ship but it had a stationary landing gear. The redesigned ship has streamlining modifications including a retractable landing gear, re-balancing of weight and the three bladed propeller instead of a wooden "club."

To Be Secondary Fighters

These ships are designed to be secondary fighters, not combat ships designed to chase fast bombers or fast pursuers. With a fairly good cruising range, they will be able to strengthen squadrons of heavy pursuit planes and to escort bombers or protect home cities.

In the latter category, they will serve excellently, since they rise at a rate corresponding to that of some of the best fighting ships in the world.

TWO MOTORISTS BRUISED AS CARS HIT AT PHERSON

and France are sanctioned on that basis.

One of the first concrete results of President Roosevelt's talk with the senate committee was the action of Geoffrey Mander, veteran liberal member of parliament, who served notice that he would ask Chamberlain on Feb. 7 to consider the advisability of visiting President Roosevelt.

Would Continue Trips

Mander will suggest Chamberlain undertake a trip to Washington as a continuation of his visits to national leaders of the major powers.

Authoritative circles here obviously welcomed President Roosevelt's latest move as a development of utmost importance, particularly in the light of British and French desires for a promise of material aid from the United States in the event of a European war.

Nevertheless, these quarters soft-pedaled their enthusiasm, pointing out the President's plans are bound to meet fierce criticism in congressional circles at Washington and before the court of American public opinion.

This, it was pointed out, will doubtless minimize the value of England and France of the stand adopted by the American chief executive.

Berlin Silent After

F. D. States Stand

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—President Roosevelt's attitude that the United States should support Europe's democracies against the dictatorships in every way short of war was seen by the officially inspired German press today as "making much ado about nothing."

German official quarters preferred to remain silent about the President's declarations at the White House to members of the senate military affairs committee. They allowed it to be understood, however, that they saw the President's attitude as another indication of his political tactics of "selling a heavy arms expenditure program to the American public through war scares."

At the same time, official quarters called attention to the Reichstag speech declaration of Chancellor Adolf Hitler that no one had the right to interfere with Germany's efforts to stimulate its trade and other activities in Latin America.

mountains the snow was bearing down at a rapid rate on the city which was ill prepared to receive it.

The death toll from Monday's storm had already mounted to 18 today and the rate of victims would be increased, it was feared, with any further hardships.

Except for the downtown section and principal thoroughfares, the city was still in the clutch of the Monday storm with deep drifts blocking sidestreets in the residential and outlying sections.

Many highways in the surrounding territory were either impassable or unfit for extended motor travel and even a light fall, would create a more serious tieup than before.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said the new storm may not be as bad as the one on Monday when 14.9 inches fell in less than sixteen hours but said he expected it to be "heavy."

ELEANOR RATES BEST AS TIPPER, PORTERS DECIDE

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Well, sir, there was an added explanation today for the aura of welcome, the flashing smiles, that greet the much-traveled Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt when she steps into the diner on her railroad journeys.

Not wholly because she is the wife of the President.

Nor even just because of her gracious informality.

There's still another reason.

Mrs. Roosevelt is the most generous tipper among women railroad travelers.

This disclosure came today from a most authoritative source, Right from George E. Brown, general chairman and secretary of the Dining Car Employees union.

There are polls and polls, and so the union of the white-clad dining car waiters decided on their own tabulation. Here is what their poll disclosed in the way of "most generous" tipsters:

Women riders—Mrs. Roosevelt. Stage, screen and radio stars—Morton Downey.

Politicians—Postmaster General James J. Farley.

Sports—Jack Dempsey.

Society—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

The average man tips 25 cents, the average woman 15. The smallest, most valueless, tip last year was garnered by a waiter on the Baltimore & Ohio. Under the plate of a departing diner, the waiter found one copper penny—plugged!

the matching provision in the bill for the last two weeks when an amendment carried which will credit relief expenditures for January to the cities for matching purposes.

The first "ripper" bill to receive consideration by the legislature came in for some outside ripping from the two labor factions, the A.F.L. and the C.I.O., when the senate commerce and labor committee held a hearing on the Baker Unemployment Compensation commission reorganization measure.

Hearing Postponed

Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary of the Ohio Federation of Labor, and John Owens, chairman of the Ohio Council for Industrial Organization, called the bill unsound and "subterfuge." Their attitude so disturbed the committee that the hearing was postponed until next Monday night.

The bill would set up a director at a salary of $7,500 and a three-member board of review at $4,500 each.

Donnelly pointed out that the A.F.L. had "sat in" with Governor Bricker to discuss legislation and had been vitally interested in his campaign, but he added:

"There is no need for drastic action now to make the governor the dominating influence in the present commission."

He referred to the successful eleventh hour job grab perpetrated by former Governor Davey to gain control of the present three-man commission for the Democrats.

Owens said any move to place a director in charge of the commission should be investigated and that the present commission is fundamentally sound.

Senator Keifer said a board of review would slow up compensation payments rather than expedite them and William Rasey, Sandusky, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, warned:

"As I recall, the last ripper legislation was in 1922 under Governor Harry L. Davis. We all know what happened to him. If the present governor wishes to protect civil service it would make no difference who controls the commission."

FRANCE SEEKS SUPERIORITY IN PURSUIT PLANE

Mass Production Under Way With 'Fighting Fleas' Getting Attention

300 MILES PER IS GOAL

Italy, Germany Watched As Hurried Building Continues

PARIS, Feb. 1.—France has developed a 300-mile-per-hour "flyer" pursuit plane to be produced under mass-production methods in an effort to offset the air superiority of Fascist Italy and Germany.

These flyer fighters, or fighting fleas, as they have been christened by pilots, will augment the 100 American Curtiss P-36 pursuit planes, which are much larger and faster.

And, since the Air Ministry plans to put the "fighting fleas" into production in a number of factories, it became more apparent today that American military aircraft firms will receive more orders from France.

These orders will be based on the selected list of military planes, chosen by the Air Ministry as ideal American equipment, and financed by the new budget for air of nearly $400,000,000.

Mass-Production Approved

Believing that a highly maneuverable ship, capable of slightly over 300 miles per hour, stands a chance in aerial combat against heavier pursuit planes of faster speed, Air Minister Guy La Chambre has certified the mass-production of the new "fighting fleas," first produced by the Caudron Aviation works.

Although it was not announced, this correspondent was informed by Minister La Chambre that one of the factors playing a most important part in this decision was the revelation that all-metal pursuit planes, which are consequently heavier, larger and more expensive to build, suffer seriously from vibration when struck by bullets in spots not usually vital.

Consequently, the "fighting fleas" will be of wood and canvas construction, reinforced in sections taking the heaviest stress by duralumin (aluminum and steel).

Placing of Guns

Since these ships will oppose airplanes having a 50-mile-an-hour speed advantage, they have been made very small to be highly maneuverable and are armed with two 20 millimeter aerial cannons besides two 50 calibre machine guns. The cannons are mounted in the wings and the machine guns in the nose.

Completely equipped, the entire plane weighs only 2,700 pounds. It's secret of speed and excellent maneuverability lies in its short, clipped wings, short fuselage and excellent power derived from a three-bladed, controllable-pitch propeller throw by a comparatively small in-line motor—480 horsepower.

The original model was quoted by the government as a 285-mile-an-hour ship but it had a stationary landing gear. The redesigned ship has streamlining modifications including a retractable landing gear, re-balancing of weight and the three bladed propeller instead of a wooden "club."

To Be Secondary Fighters

These ships are designed to be secondary fighters, not combat ships designed to chase fast bombers or fast pursuers. With a fairly good cruising range, they will be able to strengthen squadrons of heavy pursuit planes and to escort bombers or protect home cities.

In the latter category, they will serve excellently, since they rise at a rate corresponding to that of some of the best fighting ships in the world.

TWO MOTORISTS BRUISED AS CARS HIT AT PHERSON

Two motorists escaped with bruises Tuesday at 5 p. m. in a collision at an intersection at Pherson, Monroe township.

An auto owned by the Ohio Central Telephone Co., of Wooster, and driven by M. M. Fulton, 33, of Mt. Sterling, was overturned and damaged. The other car was owned by James Campbell, Williamsport Route 1, and driven by H. S. Long, 42, of Williamsport Route 1. Fulton was driving east on Route 56, Campbell was driving south on the road intersecting Route 56.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff investigated the accident.

Parliament Liberal Would Send Chamberlain To Washington

and France are sanctioned on that basis.

One of the first concrete results of President Roosevelt's talk with the senate committee was the action of Geoffrey Mander, veteran liberal member of parliament, who served notice that he would ask Chamberlain on Feb. 7 to consider the advisability of visiting President Roosevelt.

Would Continue Trips

Mander will suggest Chamberlain undertake a trip to Washington as a continuation of his visits to national leaders of the major powers.

Authoritative circles here obviously welcomed President Roosevelt's latest move as a development of utmost importance, particularly in the light of British and French desires for a promise of material aid from the United States in the event of a European war.

Nevertheless, these quarters soft-pedaled their enthusiasm, pointing out the President's plans are bound to meet fierce criticism in congressional circles at Washington and before the court of American public opinion.

This, it was pointed out, will doubtless minimize the value of England and France of the stand adopted by the American chief executive.

Berlin Silent After F. D. States Stand

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—President Roosevelt's attitude that the United States should support Europe's democracies against the dictatorships in every way short of war was seen by the officially inspired German press today as "making much ado about nothing."

German official quarters preferred to remain silent about the President's declarations at the White House to members of the senate military affairs committee. They allowed it to be understood, however, that they saw the President's attitude as another indication of his political tactics of "selling a heavy arms expenditure program to the American public through war scares."

At the same time, official quarters called attention to the Reichstag speech declaration of Chancellor Adolf Hitler that no one had the right to interfere with Germany's efforts to stimulate its trade and other activities in Latin America.

WITH threatened impeachment proceedings obviated in view of the resignation of Federal Judge Martin E. Declaring he had done nothing in his 22 years on the bench of which he was ashamed, Judge Manton described himself as a victim of the "ambitions" of District Attorney Thomas E. mountains the snow was bearing down at a rapid rate on the city which was ill prepared to receive it.

The death toll from Monday's storm had already mounted to 18 today and the rate of victims would be increased, it was feared, with any further hardships.

Except for the downtown section and principal thoroughfares, the city was still in the clutch of the Monday storm with deep drifts blocking side streets in the residential and outlying sections.

Many highways in the surrounding territory were either impassable or unfit for extended motor travel and even a light fall, would create a more serious tieup than before.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said the new storm may not be as bad as the one on Monday when 14.9 inches fell in less than sixteen hours but said he expected it to be "heavy."

ELEANOR RATES BEST AS TIPPER, PORTERS DECIDE

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Well, sir, there was an added explanation today for the aura of welcome, the flashing smiles, that greet the much-traveled Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt when she steps into the diner on her railroad journeys.

Not wholly because she is the wife of the President. Nor even just because of her gracious informality.

There's still another reason. Mrs. Roosevelt is the most generous tipper among women railroad travelers.

This disclosure came today from a most authoritative source. Right from George E. Brown, general chairman and secretary of the Dining Car Employees union.

There are polls and polls, and so the union of the white-clad dining car waiters decided on their own tabulation. Here is what their poll disclosed in the way of "most generous" tippers:

Women riders—Mrs. Roosevelt. Stage, screen and radio stars—Morton Downey.

Politicians—Postmaster General James J. Farley.

Sports—Jack Dempsey. Society—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

The average man tips 25 cents, the average woman 15. The smallest, most valueless, tip last year was garnered by a waiter on the Baltimore & Ohio. Under the plate of a departing diner, the waiter found one copper penny—plugged!

the matching provision in the bill for the last two weeks when an amendment carried which will credit relief expenditures for January to the cities for matching purposes.

The first "ripper" bill to receive consideration by the legislature came in for some outside ripping from the two labor factions, the A.F.L. and the C.I.O., when the senate commerce and labor committee held a hearing on the Baker Unemployment Compensation commission reorganization measure.

Hearing Postponed

Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary of the Ohio Federation of Labor, and John Owens, chairman of the Ohio Council for Industrial Organization, called the bill unsound and "subterfuge." Their attitude so disturbed the committee that the hearing was postponed until next Monday night.

The bill would set up a director at a salary of $7,500 and a three-member board of review at $4,500 each.

Donnelly pointed out that the A.F.L. had "sat in" with Governor Bricker to discuss legislation and had been vitally interested in his campaign, but he added:

"There is no need for drastic action now to make the governor the dominating influence in the present commission."

He referred to the successful eleventh hour job grab perpetrated by former Governor Davey to gain control of the present three-man commission for the Democrats.

Owens said any move to place a director in charge of the commission should be investigated and that the present commission is fundamentally sound.

Senator Keifer said a board of review would slow up compensation payments rather than expedite them and William Rasey, Sandusky, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, warned:

"As I recall, the last ripper legislation was in 1922 under Governor Harry L. Davis. We all know what happened to him. If the present governor wishes to protect civil service it would make no difference who controls the commission."

Wheat in "Fair to Good" Shape, Farmers Report

By S. D. Fridley
Phone Ashville, 79

Knowing that Winter and early Spring weather used to be damaging to growing wheat, concluded it would be a good idea to find out something about it today, so we contacted several community farmers by asking, "How is the wheat wintering?" The majority said, fair to good shape and that the roots had not been damaged much yet and that's what counts most, they said. Haven't heard anything about the "newfangled" drill, wheat planted deep in the ground, but will hear what their owners say soon as we meet up with these boys.

You've been out times rabbit hunting when there were none to be found and you concluded they were secure in their holes and this thing happens to the news very often when you're out doing your best to find some, but don't get along so well. Sometimes though, if the ground is not too tough, the news, same as the rabbits, can be dug out.

A mule can't do any better job of kicking than a tractor if Donald Leist's broken arm is evidence in the case. But the injured member is "coming along fine" and will be ready for the Spring plowing—maybe. Mr. Leist is a resident of Madison township and operates what we call the Hall farm, near Marcy.

Because of the supper at Hedges Chapel this Wednesday evening, the meeting of the local Community Club has been postponed until one week from this evening—February 8. Announcement of time and place of meeting will be named later.

We told you so, and that is what it will be. Your name, month, day and year of birth. This will be compiled as a permanent record. A blank space will be provided for date of death.

Met my old friend William Corder yesterday who had come down town from North Ashville to do a little store shopping. Said he had been a resident of Ashville for 29 years and if he lives until next October 4, he will have reached his 85th birthday. Mr. Corder is very active and is anxiously awaiting Spring, when much time will be spent at garden making.

Mrs. Harry Brown has returned home from Canton where she had been called by the death of Mr. Otto Karcher, the father of Mrs. Amelia Carey formerly of Walnut township and well known there.

What Joe Louis couldn't do with the fist Fred Allen hopes to do with a broad New England "A" when he interviews Patsy Peroni, heavyweight prizefighter, as his "Person You Didn't Expect to Meet" on "Town Hall Tonight" tonight at 9 o'clock over the NBC-Red network. Signor Peroni lasted twelve rounds with Joe Louis, but Fred, who has yet to be defeated in a verbal sparring bout, confidentially expects to have him down for the count inside of a few script pages.

Fred is being trained for the encounter by Harry von Zell, who was a boxer on the West coast before the microphone lured him away from the ring. Indeed, Fred himself works out in a gymnasium ring several times a week during the winter, but just in case anything goes wrong Portland Hoffa will be ready with a baseball bat.

JURY'S VERDICT DECIDES MERCY FOR SLAYER, 42

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1 — Saved from the electric chair when a criminal court jury found him guilty of first degree murder but recommended mercy, Fred Jewell, 42 year old World War veteran, today faced a life term in Ohio penitentiary for the butcher-knife slaying of his love rival, Robert Heiser, 21, last Oct. 16.

Judge Dana F. Reynolds pronounced sentence last night after two days of testimony, one of the shortest first degree murder trials in the history of Franklin county. A jury of 10 men and two women reached a verdict after less than five ballots.

The prosecution charged that Jewell stabbed Heiser because of jealousy over the affections of Miss Ruth Valentine after he saw Heiser and the girl leave a restaurant together. Jewell admitted under cross examination that he cut another man "over the same girl" some time ago.

When he was being led from the courtroom at the close of the trial, Jewell told reporters he had nothing to say, except:

"I am sorry for what I have done and I hope his (Heiser's) mother will forgive me."

Wheat in "Fair to Good" Shape, Farmers Report

By S. D. Fridley
Phone Ashville, 79

Knowing that Winter and early Spring weather used to be damaging to growing wheat, concluded it would be a good idea to find out something about it today, so we contacted several community farmers by asking, "How is the wheat wintering?" The majority said, fair to good shape and that the roots had not been damaged much yet and that's what counts most, they said. Haven't heard anything about the "newfangled" drill, wheat planted deep in the ground, but we'll hear what their owners say soon as we meet up with these boys.

Ashville—You've been out times rabbit hunting when there were none to be found and you concluded they were secure in their holes and this thing happens to the news very often when you're out doing your best to find some, but don't get along so well. Sometimes though, if the ground is not too tough, the news, same as the rabbits, can be dug out.

Ashville—A mule can't do any better job of kicking than a tractor if Donald Leist's broken arm is evidence in the case. But the injured member is "coming along fine" and will be ready for the Spring plowing—maybe. Mr. Leist is a resident of Madison township and operates what we call the Hall farm, near Marcy.

Ashville—Because of the supper at Hedges Chapel this Wednesday evening, the meeting of the local Community Club has been postponed until one week from this evening—February 8. Announcement of time and place of meeting will be named later.

Ashville—We told you so, and that is what it will be. Your name, month, day and year of birth. This will be compiled as a permanent record. A blank space will be provided for date of death.

Ashville—Met my old friend William Corder yesterday who had come downtown from North Ashville to do a little store shopping. Said he had been a resident of Ashville for 29 years and if he lives until next October 4, he will have reached his 85th birthday. Mr. Corder is very active and is anxiously awaiting Spring, when much time will be spent at garden making.

Ashville—Mrs. Harry Brown has returned home from Canton where she had been called by the death of Mr. Otto Karcher, the father of Mrs. Amelia Carey formerly of Walnut township and well known there.

Ashville—Mrs. Frank Jinks entertained at

AUTOGIROS AND ROTORPLANES
AN old dream begins to realize itself with arrangements for regular air mail service by means of an autogiro, operating between the Philadelphia postoffice and the airport in Camden, N. J. The bid, submitted by Eastern Airlines, was $3.86 a mile. The craft is expected to use the roof of the postoffice for a landing stage.
The autogiro may be described as an airplane driven in the usual way by a motor, but having in addition to small stabilizing wings a set of rotating planes above which support and stabilize the craft.
A development related to this, is the helicopter or rotary airplane worked out in Germany, of which astonishing stories are told. The Focke-Wulf helicopter, which has no wings, and is propelled by two rotating planes mounted above the ship, has broken all records for such craft. A film showing its operation is described by the Scientific American as follows:
The machine performed the most marvelous evolutions inside a hall; flew forward at 75 miles an hour, backward at 18 miles an hour, hovered, turned around on its own axis, all under perfect control. That highly distinguished aeronautic engineer Grover Loening confirmed the astounding characteristics of the machine. On one occasion he stood beside Professor Focke when an inexperienced pilot was in the cockpit. Not knowing what to do, he brought his machine completely to rest some ten feet from the ground, and called out, "Was soll ich thun?" The professor told him, and he landed safely.
Most of us could probably operate such a craft.
MORE BOATING
IN 1937 the outboard motor trade enjoyed the best year of its history. In 1938 it missed the recession and proceeded to surpass its 1937 record. The prospects for 1939 are excellent. New York has just had the best motor boat show ever held there, in attendance and sales.
This pleasant record is evidence of America's rapidly developing enthusiasm for water sports—motor boating, sailing, canoeing, swimming, and so on. There are still millionaires with yachts, but they are many times outnumbered by the rest of us who have taken to the water in all sorts of lesser craft.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round
BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.
FRENCH SEEK TO GET U. S. PLANES
WASHINGTON—Behind the Senatorial worry over French airplanes ordered in the United States are just two things: (1) the desperate condition of the French air force today; and (2) the fact that France is trying to buy planes in this country before our own air program is passed by Congress and monopolizes U. S. production.
France's desperate need of planes recently was set forth by able Ambassador Bill Bullitt in a confidential report to the President. That report gave revealing insight into the reasons why France and Britain surrendered to Hitler at Munich.
It showed that when Hitler forced the Munich showdown, France had only 500 first line planes, while Britain had an equal number. In contrast Germany had 6,000 first line planes, with 3,500 of slightly inferior quality. Italy had 3,000 to 4,000 planes.
Bullitt reported that France had built up a powerful air force after the Armistice, but had let it deteriorate. This deterioration was accelerated after the Blum Government took over the munitions plants, until in May 1938, not one plane was produced in France.

BRITISH PLANES
Just before the Munich Conference, the plight of the French air force caused Paris to query the British as to what help they could give in case of a German attack. The British replied that they could send the grand total of 120 planes—but only after one month.
The French also queried the Soviet regarding air reinforcements. The Russians had 4,000 to 5,000 planes, most of them copied after American models. But the Russians replied that their planes probably could not reach France in any bulk quantity.
The Bullitt report also showed that Germany had made plans to attack London and Paris by air, using 80 percent high explosive bombs, 15 percent incendiary bombs to set fire to buildings, and 5 percent gas bombs, the latter to prevent fire engines and rescue squads from putting out the fires.
With this method it appeared that London and Paris would be made a shambles. Thus fear of aerial warfare was the deciding factor behind the Munich surrender. Also it is the motivating factor in the French purchase of airplanes in the USA.
MONOPOLY PROBE
Whether or not the monopoly probe winds up this Spring will be decided at an important meeting to be held by the Monopoly Committee this week.
Committee funds are running low, and a new appropriation is necessary if original plans for a sweeping exploration of U. S. industry are to be consummated. The President favors this and so do the six departmental members of the committee.
But some of the six congressional members are cold.

World At A Glance
—By—
Charles P. Stewart
Senators Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, Arthur Capper of Kansas, Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota and Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin constitute quite a formidable tri-partisan partnership of solons.
They have joined forces, as they already have announced, in a campaign to prevent the United States from declaring war again without a national referendum to all the voters. If such a referendum endorses hostilities, we can go ahead; if the result is negative, we stay out. A constitutional amendment probably will be necessary to re-adjust the country as per this program. That, then, assuming some constitution-fixing to be essential, is what Senators Clark, Capper, Nye and LaFollette will fight for.
It will be recalled that Representative Louis Ludlow of Indiana had the same idea a session or two of congress ago, and while he did not succeed in getting it favorably acted on, it was not by any means generally pooh-poohed.
It is a notion which professional army and navy men naturally do not like. Their reasoning is that, if Uncle Sam is going into a war at all, he should go in with a bounce, as abruptly as possible, catching the prospective enemy off guard, instead of giving him at least a few weeks advance warning, with electioneering going on.
The White House does not like it, either. President Roosevelt certainly does not. It is unlikely that any past or future president ever has or will. The executive mansion's argument is that, through the state department, it can say, in effect, to any semi-ill-disposed foreign power, "You fellows have got to agree with us or we'll go to war." Whereupon, the supposition is that said power, scared, will back up. However, if the referendum plan is adopted, the ill-disposed power aforesaid will be apt to reply, "Haha! We don't believe you can get the required popular vote."
WHO DECLARES WAR?
The President cannot, to be sure, declare war, however much he may wish to do so.
At present it takes congress to do that.
Nevertheless, he can create a situation in which congress has not much choice except to do the declaring. If the lawmakers are in recess he can call an extra session, stating, "Here's an emergency; we must declare war."
And congress pretty much has to do it.
But how about the rank-and-file of the electorate?
Nobody knows, but I have my doubts whether or not it would have voted for war when we went into the world conflict. I am fairly sure that the vote would be adverse if the same conditions presented themselves now. That (and what followed) was a lesson.
Of course nobody argues that the U. S. A. should hesitate to resist an attack. Sometimes it is a bit difficult to distinguish between defense and offense. Japan, for example, maintains that it is fighting China defensively. It is recognized that we are on the de-

DIET AND HEALTH
Cites Drop in Some Tuberculosis Cases
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ONE OF the most striking things in modern public health has been the disappearance of certain kinds of tuberculosis. I spoke yesterday of the rarity of tuberculosis of the lymph nodes in the neck, properly called scrofula. In other days, I used to see this very commonly on the street, especially in the poorer quarters of the city. It was generally considered to be a disease of poverty and poor environment. It has almost disappeared due, not to improving the financial conditions, but to stopping the infection at the source.
The same is to a certain extent true of bone and joint tuberculosis and of childhood tuberculosis, and the story is a very interesting one and one that is a great credit to American public health activity, because we have a direct comparison with conditions in England.
From Infected Milk
Most of the tuberculosis of these types—lymph node, bone and joint, and childhood tuberculosis—is transmitted from the cow in infected milk.
There is a definite type of tuberculosis known as bovine tuberculosis. It was at one time thought that this did not affect man but that idea was exploded about thirty years ago. At about this time, both in the United States and in England, the departments of health began to weed out the infected cattle from the herds. In the United States this was done very thoroughly and all suspected cattle were slaughtered and destroyed. In England there was opposition to this plan; economic considerations were allowed to prevail, and many lightly infected cattle were saved. They slaughtered only a few.
The result has been that thirty years later England has found itself with just as much bone and joint and lymph node tuberculosis as it had at the beginning of their campaign. So far as human incidence was concerned, the English might as well not have done any work at all. In the United States, where more rigorous methods were used, the incidence of these types of tuberculosis has gone down to a very low place, and the campaign for eradicating tuberculosis among cattle has been justified. The English have now begun to go after their bovine tuberculosis in a businesslike way and are already beginning to show some results.
Different Infection
Tuberculosis of the lungs rarely is caused by the bovine type of tuberculosis. The method of infection in these cases is different. The reason that tuberculosis of the glands is bovine in type is that it is a foot and mouth infection. These glands become involved while the child is handling everything and putting many articles into his mouth. The incidence of tuberculosis of the tonsils in these cases is reported as high. Forty-one per cent of cases of tuberculosis of the lymph nodes of the neck showed tuberculosis of the tonsils.
Removal of the tonsils is of value in these cases. In fact, it is quite as important to remove the tonsils as it is the lymph nodes themselves. How the germs get into bones and joints is probably that they are carried from the tonsils by the lymph nodes to a favorable spot for development.

S. W.: "I know that the only permanent way to remove superfluous hair is by electrolysis but since I live in a small town where there are no specialists, I wonder if it is harmful to use depilatories even though it is necessary to apply them over and over again."
Answer: Most depilatories are entirely harmless. The best temporary method of removing superfluous hair, however, is by a razor. This does not make the hair grow in any coarser than an ordinary depilatory.

"NOW, MR. WITHERSPOON," Mac said briskly, "where are those shirts?"
"Shirts?" Mr. Horace surveyed the room blankly. "I dropped them somewhere—"
"They're here, at this side of the bed," Dr. Didmore, who had been yawning and gazing during the entire proceedings, indicated a spot at his feet. Mac walked around the bed and got down on all fours on the floor. And there, scattered on the carpet, were the shirts. Four of them. They were spattered with blood.
"Doc!" barked Mac, "suppose Mr. Witherespoon had not turned to the chair with the shirts?"
The medical examiner cleared his throat importantly. "In that case," he said, "the bullet would have penetrated the heart. The bureau is on an angle from the door. When Mr. Witherespoon swung around the bullet grazed his shoulder, struck the glass and glanced off into the woodwork."
"So," said Mac softly, "so the bullet was meant to be fatal!" And he looked squarely at Daphne Witherespoon.
"But who would wish to kill me?" questioned Mr. Horace in bewilderment. "I have no enemies—"
"Neither, apparently, had your wife or your mother," Mac stated bluntly, "and your mother was murdered. Dr. Didmore performed the autopsy this evening. Cyanide was found in the body!"
"I see—" Mr. Horace seemed to shrivel before our very eyes. "I—I think, if you don't mind, I will go to my room."
"Of course," Mac was at once contrite. "There will be an inquest tomorrow afternoon. Will you please notify your household?"
The wounded man nodded. With Phil's assistance he managed to rise from the bed.
"By the way," Mac raised his voice slightly, "may I trouble you for the keys to your laboratory?"
"The keys?" Something foreign flickered behind the colorless, opaque eyes of the wounded man. "The laboratory is never locked," he said slowly, "never."
"Thank you," McIntyre bowed. "Miss Daphne, will you assist your father to his room?"
"Come along, father," Daphne took her place at his side.
"Coming, Mac?" Phil clasped my hand.
"Go along, children," He motioned us away. "I'm staying here for awhile. I have—something to do."
"This is sure turning out to be one honey of a case!" remarked Phil, blowing great clouds of smoke into the already polluted air of my bedroom. "One suspect after another goes down the drain! Looks now like it has to be one of the guests—or Daphne."
"May I have a cigaret, please?" I took the pack from his pocket. I did not feel up to discussing Daphne's guilt or innocence. I had defended her so furiously in the past, and now—I did not know—she had done so many queer things. Deep in my heart I still believed in her innocence. I guess that is why I had not mentioned the meeting in the arborium. I would give her another chance—though I did not put it quite that way—I would not give her away—not yet.
"Thank God, we're safe for tonight!" I said presently, and thankfully. Chief Ellis had sent for and received half the town police force, who, even at the moment, paraded the corridors and grounds of the Manor. It was a comforting sight, believe me, the club and the gun and the blue uniform!
Phil hazarded: "Don't think there'll be any more fireworks tonight, baby."
"I hope not!" I had had enough excitement for one night and for one lifetime. I stifled a yawn. "Wonder what Mac has up his sleeve?" I said sleepily.
Phil frowned. "He has something, you may depend on that! Mac isn't a cautious Scotsman for nothing."
"He's staying upstairs a long time. What in the world can he be doing?"
"I don't know—but I'm going to find out!" He jumped up, determination written on his face.
My drowsiness vanished. "Not without me!" I said. "I'm going wherever you go."
"O. K., kid. I'm going to the third floor. Come on!"
Once again the Manor slept. The corridor, save for the blue-clad figures of the policemen on guard at the head of the front and back stairs, was deserted.
The door to Mr. Richard's room was closed. Phil opened it without knocking.
Mac McIntyre stood before the bureau, his arms filled with shirts! "What the—" exclaimed Phil, and the detective spun around on his heel, dropped the shirts and clasped his hand to his shoulder.
"So!" he muttered, "so!" He bobbed his head several times; he gave a grunt of satisfaction. He paid us no attention whatsoever. "Is the man mad?" demanded Phil of Chief Ellis, who from a chair by the window regarded his colleague's peculiar antics unmoved.
Ellis shrugged. "He's been doing that for fifteen minutes."
Mac made no explanation. He was staring at the four shirts spread out upon the rug. On his face was an expression of rapture, as though he gazed into the eyes of a newly discovered and awakened love! Then with a quick movement he scooped the shirts into his arms.
"Where's that coat Didmore cut from Mr. Witherespoon?" he demanded of the chief.
"It's around here somewhere—there—on the chair!"
Mac exchanged the shirts for the coat. The latter he examined critically. One shoulder had been cut away. The jagged piece of material he subjected to minute scrutiny.
"Well," he said at last. "Well!" The fire left his eyes. He looked worried, puzzled.
"What's going on, Mac?" Phil asked petulantly.
"You kids still up?" He glanced around at us.
"Come on!" urged Phil. "What sort of bee's in your bonnet?"
"Bee?" Mac shook his head. "The bee has turned into a dodo bird, Benson! I'm all wet, I guess, and yet—" He shrugged. "Guess maybe I'm getting old!"

AUTOGIROS AND ROTORPLANES
AN old dream begins to realize itself with arrangements for regular air mail service by means of an autogiro, operating between the Philadelphia postoffice and the airport in Camden, N. J. The bid, submitted by Eastern Airlines, was $3.86 a mile. The craft is expected to use the roof of the postoffice for a landing stage.
The autogiro may be described as an airplane driven in the usual way by a motor, but having in addition to small stabilizing wings a set of rotating planes above which support and stabilize the craft.
A development related to this, is the helicopter or rotary airplane worked out in Germany, of which astonishing stories are told. The Focke-Wulf helicopter, which has no wings, and is propelled by two rotating planes mounted above the ship, has broken all records for such craft. A film showing its operation is described by the Scientific American as follows:
The machine performed the most marvelous evolutions inside a hall; flew forward at 75 miles an hour, backward at 18 miles an hour, hovered, turned around on its own axis, all under perfect control. That highly distinguished aeronautic engineer Grover Loening confirmed the astounding characteristics of the machine. On one occasion he stood beside Professor Focke when an inexperienced pilot was in the cockpit. Not knowing what to do, he brought his machine completely to rest some ten feet from the ground, and called out, "Was soll ich thun?" The professor told him, and he landed safely.
Most of us could probably operate such a craft.

MORE BOATING
IN 1937 the outboard motor trade enjoyed the best year of its history. In 1938 it missed the recession and proceeded to surpass its 1937 record. The prospects for 1939 are excellent. New York has just had the best motor boat show ever held there, in attendance and sales.
This pleasant record is evidence of America's rapidly developing enthusiasm for water sports—motor boating, sailing, canoeing, swimming, and so on. There are still millionaires with yachts, but they are many times outnumbered by the rest of us who have taken to the water in all sorts of lesser craft.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

FRENCH SEEK TO GET U. S. PLANES
WASHINGTON—Behind the Senatorial worry over French airplanes ordered in the United States are just two things: (1) the desperate condition of the French air force today; and (2) the fact that France is trying to buy planes in this country before our own air program is passed by Congress and monopolizes U. S. production.
France's desperate need of planes recently was set forth by able Ambassador Bill Bullitt in a confidential report to the President. That report gave revealing insight into the reasons why France and Britain surrendered to Hitler at Munich.
It showed that when Hitler forced the Munich showdown, France had only 500 first line planes, while Britain had an equal number. In contrast Germany had 6,000 first line planes, with 3,500 of slightly inferior quality. Italy had 3,000 to 4,000 planes.
Bullitt reported that France had built up a powerful air force after the Armistice, but had let it deteriorate. This deterioration was accelerated after the Blum Government took over the munitions plants, until in May 1938, not one plane was produced in France.

BRITISH PLANES
Just before the Munich Conference, the plight of the French air force caused Paris to query the British as to what help they could give in case of a German attack. The British replied that they could send the grand total of 120 planes—but only after one month.
The French also queried the Soviet regarding air reinforcements. The Russians had 4,000 to 5,000 planes, most of them copied after American models. But the Russians replied that their planes probably could not reach France in any bulk quantity.
The Bullitt report also showed that Germany had made plans to attack London and Paris by air, using 80 percent high explosive bombs, 15 percent incendiary bombs to set fire to buildings, and 5 percent gas bombs, the latter to prevent fire engines and rescue squads from putting out the fires.
With this method it appeared that London and Paris would be made a shambles. Thus fear of aerial warfare was the deciding factor behind the Munich surrender. Also it is the motivating factor in the French purchase of airplanes in the USA.

"I see—" Mr. Horace seemed to shrivel before our very eyes. "I—I think, if you don't mind, I will go to my room."
"Of course," Mac was at once contrite. "There will be an inquest tomorrow afternoon. Will you please notify your household?"
The wounded man nodded. With Phil's assistance he managed to rise from the bed.
"By the way," Mac raised his voice slightly, "may I trouble you for the keys to your laboratory?"
"The keys?" Something foreign flickered behind the colorless, opaque eyes of the wounded man. "The laboratory is never locked," he said slowly, "never."
"Thank you," McIntyre bowed. "Miss Daphne, will you assist your father to his room?"
"Come along, father," Daphne took her place at his side.
"Coming, Mac?" Phil clasped my hand.
"Go along, children," He motioned us away. "I'm staying here for awhile. I have—something to do."
"This is sure turning out to be one honey of a case!" remarked Phil, blowing great clouds of smoke into the already polluted air of my bedroom. "One suspect after another goes down the drain! Looks now like it has to be one of the guests—or Daphne!"
"May I have a cigaret, please?" I took the pack from his pocket. I did not feel up to discussing Daphne's guilt or innocence. I had defended her so furiously in the past, and now—I did not know—she had done so many queer things. Deep in my heart I still believed in her innocence. I guess that is why I had not mentioned the meeting in the arborium. I would give her another chance—though I did not put it quite that way—I would not give her away—not yet.
"Thank God, we're safe for tonight!" I said presently, and thankfully. Chief Ellis had sent for and received half the town police force, who, even at the moment, paraded the corridors and grounds of the Manor. It was a comforting sight, believe me, the club and the gun and the blue uniform!
Phil hazarded: "Don't think there'll be any more fireworks tonight, baby."
"I hope not!" I had had enough excitement for one night and for one lifetime. I stifled a yawn.
"Wonder what Mac has up his sleeve?" I said sleepily.
Phil frowned. "He has something, you may depend on that! Mac isn't a cautious Scotsman for nothing."
"He's staying upstairs a long time. What in the world can he be doing?"
"I don't know—but I'm going to find out!" He jumped up, determination written on his face.
My drowsiness vanished. "Not without me!" I said. "I'm going wherever you go."
"O. K., kid. I'm going to the third floor. Come on!"
Once again the Manor slept. The corridor, save for the blue-clad figures of the policemen on guard at the head of the front and back stairs, was deserted.
The door to Mr. Richard's room was closed. Phil opened it without knocking.
Mac McIntyre stood before the

TWO BOXERS HIT HARD AND OFTEN BY ARMSTRONG

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—Two good fighters nursed sore jaws and bodies today after stepping through two rounds apiece with Henry Armstrong, triple title holder. Not aiming for a knockout, Armstrong first fought Johnny Shepherd, Cleveland, and peppered that young man with rights and lefts that drew blood.

The second opponent was Terry McGovern, Fresno, Calif. McGovern fared little better and his face resembled a beet after Armstrong finished plastering him with hard jabs to the jaws and eyes.

Armstrong's appearance here was part of a nationwide exhibition series in which he is participating.

Tiger Cagers Whip London

Circleville high school Tigers started a heavy week of activity Tuesday evening by invading London and returning with a 40 to 27 victory over Coach Jake Von Kanel's lads. The Tigers overcame a lethargic first period to run up a score.

The London game should put the varsity in fine fettle for its Friday and Saturday night engagements against Upper Arlington and Kingston, two of the strongest teams to appear in Circleville this season.

London matched the Red and Black blow for blow in the opening period, but couldn't keep pace in the second session to fall behind 17 to 9 at halftime. The Tigers moved the ball in splendid style in this period, and at the same time stopped the London offensive.

The third quarter saw the Red and Black adding 10 while London could get but seven and the last session gave the Tigers 13 more points to 11.

Coach Roy Black substituted for his first team in the final period, but was forced to return his stars to action when London cut the lead to 10 points.

Whitey Davis and Harold Smith, Red and Black forwards, hit the hoop for 14 and 11 points, respectively.

RETAILERS HEAR SUGGESTIONS FOR IMPROVEMENT OF BUSINESS

FIVE SPEAK AT FORUM MEETING OF ASSOCIATION

Advertising, Promotion Of Sales, Change In Parking Statute Urged

ANOTHER CONFAB PLANNED

Businessmen Say Session Huge Success; Interest High

Retail Merchants "took it on the chin" Tuesday night from five shoppers, thoroughly enjoyed the bout, and decided to hold a return match in three months to check up on improvements.

The meeting of merchants, held in Hanley's tearoom for constructive criticism of Circleville as a shopping center, proved one of the best sessions ever staged by the businessmen. Fifty persons attended the meeting.

The speakers, each allotted five minutes, were Howard Orr, Mrs. B. W. Young, James I. Smith, Jr., Mrs. Lawrence Athey and Ray Rowland. They drew no punches in voicing opinions.

Mr. Orr speaking from the standpoint of a wholesaler, urged businessmen to take advantage of the sales promotions offered them by manufacturers. "There are millions being expended in sales promotions for the benefit of the retailers," Mr. Orr said. "One of my criticisms is the apathy with which merchants meet some of the promotional efforts. Retail merchants today have the greatest opportunities ever presented in the promotional field."

Parking Limit Protested

Circleville's two-hour parking ordinance caught a heavy punch from Mrs. Young, who found five minutes too brief a period to outline her recommendations. She was later granted extra time.

"Parking brought out the strongest protests from the county folk," Mrs. Young explained. "Some say they are being tagged for small misdemeanors while others are not bothered." I don't know what you can do about it; that's up to you. You're not pleasing the ladies. One explained to me she could not complete an appointment in a beauty parlor in two hours.

"Saturday is the day for the country people to come to Circleville and you should make it their day. They should be granted the privilege of visiting and spending as long as they desire in the city. The improvement of Circleville as a shopping center is not only up to the individual merchant but to merchants as a group. We need to have more vision."

Poor lighting in the downtown district and in stores was one of the principal criticisms offered by Mr. Smith. "Many stores have been modernized with new fronts, but there have been few changes inside the stores," he said. "Few stores are properly lighted and we know the condition of the downtown streets."

"The fellow satisfied with things as they are goes backward instead of forward. Many of our merchants are interested only in cheap merchandise. They are interested in unit profit and not in turnover. Shoppers want what they want at a fair price, sold to them under pleasant circumstances, or obtained for them within a reasonable time. I'll grant the merchants are improving. That is shown by this type of meeting, their advertising and the success of the Christmas program."

Mrs. Athey offered a solution to the Columbus shopping problem. "Just move Columbus 50 miles further north and make it a W. P. A. project," she said. She explained that after conducting a questionnaire among her friends she found they expected both quality and style in merchandise. "Names of merchandise have a value and in purchasing quality merchandise you get style. People dislike being sold an article. They

Athletic Club Officials Explain Rental Figures

Out of the dispute over a fair rental for use of the Circleville Athletic Club gymnasium for the county basketball tournament today came a statement from officials of the Athletic Club in which they explained the necessity for a fee of $200.

Roy N. Beatty, president, and Orwell Barr, business manager and treasurer of the Athletic Club, declared that the C. A. C. cannot afford to rent its gymnasium for less than $200. "The rental price of $125 charged in recent years has caused us to lose money," Mr. Beatty declared.

"Our side of the picture has never been presented," Mr. Beatty said. "Few persons realize the expense involved in operating the gymnasium."

If we have severe weather during the tournament we won't make any profit at the price of $200. It takes two to three tons of coal to heat the gym on an average cold day."

Mr. Beatty explained that he had heard many persons refer to the price of $15 a night charged Circleville high school for basketball games as an argument in the price controversy.

"Circleville high school does get it for $15 but that is a losing proposition for the club," he said. "These games are not operated for a profit. The high school hasn't made money on them and we have felt we should cooperate in any way possible to assist the school. The county tournament is operated for a profit and the crowds are so big they cannot be accommodated."

The president and treasurer explained the price of $200 was set by the membership of the club by a vote. It was first fixed at $250 then reduced. "We had contemplated increasing the rental price for several years," Mr. Beatty said.

"Enough Circleville people attend the county tournament in Circleville to make up the difference in the rental price in comparison to the crowds that would attend sessions at the county schools. If they divided the difference among the 13 schools that would be only about $6 for each and they certainly would spend that much on transportation costs. The crowds here are so large many persons have to be turned away. We feel we should at least break even on the proposition."

Superintendents of county schools are expected to reconsider the tournament location at their meeting next Saturday morning. The Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants association have agreed, if necessary, to pay the disputed difference.

Mr. Rowland, last of the speakers, said his position was similar to that of a farmer hauling a load of corn. The wagon mired in the mud and the farmer decided he would have to unload the corn. He turned around and discovered the end gate was missing and "he was caught with nothing to unload."

Displays, Advertising Stressed

Using suggestions obtained from Mrs. Rowland, he recommended that merchants prepare more attractive displays, handle more nationally advertised brands of merchandise and give more courteous treatment to shoppers.

"Advertising locally should tie in with the advertising of national advertised products," he said.

"Use your telephone as a sales weapon. Remind your customers of values. When I came to Circleville no merchant ever came to call on me. Let's treat our customers with a little more courtesy."

"Don't overlook the important part employees play in your store. Your success is obtained through the cooperation you receive from them."

A signal system of the type used for traffic lights was used for timing the speakers. They started on green, were warned with a caution light, and were instructed to stop on red.

"Retail merchants stuck their necks out and they got it," was the remark Carl Hunter made at the close of the addresses. "I suggest we call a meeting of these same persons in three months for an accounting." His suggestion was approved.

Herman Hill, president of the association, thanked merchants for their cooperation in the Christmas program and announced that a new sales promotion program is being developed.

LAW TO COMBAT OHIO GAMBLING GAINS SUPPORT

State Senate Promises Aid For Boyd Act Permitting Removal Of Sheriffs

GOVERNOR TO GET POWER

Several Metropolitan Counties To Face Concerted Effort By Legislators

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—The Ohio senate moved along a broader front today to strengthen the anti-gambling laws of communities by promising Sen. William M. Boyd (D-Cleveland) to draft legislation providing for removal of sheriffs by the governor.

Such a measure was ready for introduction in the senate today by Sen. Leo M. Ascherman (D-Cleveland) but Boyd said the senate leadership would prepare the drastic legislation as a compromise for Boyd's resolution asking an investigation of law enforcement officials in Cuyahoga county.

The resolution, aimed at gambling in Cuyahoga county, was sent to the senate rules committee and Boyd acquiesced when the proposal was made that the legislation be made more widespread.

Boyd said that a bill would be introduced making gambling laws more stringent on a state-wide basis and would serve his purpose in attempting to "clean up" Cuyahoga county.

"Gambling is rampant in Jefferson and Summit counties too," Boyd declared, "and this legislation will compel the county sheriffs to do something about it or lose their jobs."

He indicated that gambling also flourishes in other counties and that state law enforcement agencies as a whole need a thorough investigation.

PAPERS DRAFTED TO RETURN BANK ROBBER TO OHIO

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—Two weeks after he escaped from Ohio penitentiary in a garbage can, extradition papers were being prepared today for Howard C. Bowman, 28 year old Brown county bank robber, following his capture in Fort Worth, Texas.

Warden J. G. Woodard of Ohio penitentiary said the papers would be ready in a few days. Bowman is reported to have told Fort Worth police he would fight extradition. He was captured as he stepped from an automobile in downtown Fort Worth. Police said he was unarmed and offered no resistance.

Bowman, brother of the notorious Neal Bowman, who was executed for murder in Kentucky following his escape from Lima State Hospital, boasted to Fort Worth authorities that he "walked out the front gate" of the Ohio penitentiary. However, Warden Woodard said the convict hid in a garbage can and left the prison on a truck headed for the London Prison Farm.

A guard, Albert J. Rose, is under 30-day suspension for failing to inspect the load of garbage carefully.

BERLIN — German schoolchildren must now try to do their lessons on synthetic slates. As an experiment by the Reich Minister of Education an earlier decree already had recommended use of slates instead of exercise books in order to save paper. Now, under Germany's "four years" self-sufficiency plan, slate also will be saved.

I don't know what you can do about it; that's up to you. You're not pleasing the ladies. One explained to me she could not complete an appointment in a beauty parlor in two hours.

"Saturday is the day for the country people to come to Circleville and you should make it their day. They should be granted the privilege of visiting and spending as long as they desire in the city."

"The improvement of Circleville as a shopping center is not only up to the individual merchant but to merchants as a group. We need to have more vision."

Poor lighting in the downtown district and in stores was one of the principal criticisms offered by Mr. Smith. "Many stores have been modernized with new fronts, but there have been few changes inside the stores," he said. "Few stores are properly lighted and we know the condition of the downtown streets."

"The fellow satisfied with things as they are goes backward instead of forward. Many of our merchants are interested only in cheap merchandise. They are interested in unit profit and not in turnover. Shoppers want what they want at a fair price, sold to them under pleasant circumstances, or obtained for them within a reasonable time. I'll grant the merchants are improving. That is shown by this type of meeting, their advertising and the success of the Christmas program."

Mrs. Athey offered a solution to the Columbus shopping problem. "Just move Columbus 50 miles further north and make it a W. P. A. project," she said. She explained that after conducting a questionnaire among her friends she found they expected both quality and style in merchandise. "Names of merchandise have a value and in purchasing quality merchandise you get style. People dislike being sold an article. They

Out of the dispute over a fair rental for use of the Circleville Athletic Club gymnasium for the county basketball tournament today came a statement from officials of the Athletic Club in which they explained the necessity for a fee of $200.

Roy N. Beaty, president, and Orwell Barr, business manager and treasurer of the Athletic Club, declared that the C. A. C. cannot afford to rent its gymnasium for less than $200. "The rental price of $125 charged in recent years has caused us to lose money," Mr. Beaty declared.

"Our side of the picture has never been presented," Mr. Beaty said. "Few persons realize the expense involved in operating the gymnasium."

like to make their own selections.

A style show or pre-view of new merchandise appeal to shoppers. They like the idea of being called to see new merchandise before it is on the market. She stressed the importance of advertising.

Mr. Rowland, last of the speakers, said his position was similar to that of a farmer hauling a load of corn. The wagon mired in the mud and the farmer decided he would have to unload the corn. He turned around and discovered the end gate was missing and "he was caught with nothing to unload."

Displays, Advertising Stressed

Using suggestions obtained from Mrs. Rowland, he recommended that merchants prepare more attractive displays, handle more nationally advertised brands of merchandise and give more courteous treatment to shoppers.

"Advertising locally should tie in with the advertising of national advertised products," he said.

"Use your telephone as a sales weapon. Remind your customers of values. When I came to Circleville no merchant ever came to call on me. Let's treat our customers with a little more courtesy."

"Don't overlook the important part employees play in your store. Your success is obtained through the cooperation you receive from them."

A signal system of the type used for traffic lights was used for timing the speakers. They started on green, were warned with a caution light, and were instructed to stop on red.

"Retail merchants stuck their necks out and they got it," was the remark Carl Hunter made at the close of the addresses. "I suggest we call a meeting of these same persons in three months for an accounting." His suggestion was approved.

Herman Hill, president of the association, thanked merchants for their cooperation in the Christmas program and announced that a new sales promotion program is being developed.

LAW TO COMBAT OHIO GAMBLING GAINS SUPPORT

State Senate Promises Aid For Boyd Act Permitting Removal Of Sheriffs

GOVERNOR TO GET POWER

Several Metropolitan Counties To Face Concerted Effort By Legislators

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—The Ohio senate moved along a broader front today to strengthen the anti-gambling laws of communities by promising Sen. William M. Boyd (D-Cleveland) to draft legislation providing for removal of sheriffs by the governor.

Such a measure was ready for introduction in the senate today by Sen. Leo M. Ascherman (D-Cleveland) but Boyd said the senate leadership would prepare the drastic legislation as a compromise for Boyd's resolution asking an investigation of law enforcement officials in Cuyahoga county.

The resolution, aimed at gambling in Cuyahoga county, was sent to the senate rules committee and Boyd acquiesced when the proposal was made that the legislation be made more widespread.

Boyd said that a bill would be introduced making gambling laws more stringent on a state-wide basis and would serve his purpose in attempting to "clean up" Cuyahoga county.

"Gambling is rampant in Jefferson and Summit counties too," Boyd declared, "and this legislation will compel the county sheriffs to do something about it or lose their jobs."

He indicated that gambling also flourishes in other counties and that state law enforcement agencies as a whole need a thorough investigation.

PAPERS DRAFTED TO RETURN BANK ROBBER TO OHIO

COLUMBUS, Feb. 1—Two weeks after he escaped from Ohio penitentiary in a garbage can, extradition papers were being prepared today for Howard C. Bowman, 28 year old Brown county bank robber, following his capture in Fort Worth, Texas.

Warden J. G. Woodard of Ohio penitentiary said the papers would be ready in a few days. Bowman is reported to have told Fort Worth police he would fight extradition. He was captured as he stepped from an automobile in downtown Fort Worth. Police said he was unarmed and offered no resistance.

Bowman, brother of the notorious Neal Bowman, who was executed for murder in Kentucky following his escape from Lima State Hospital, boasted to Fort Worth authorities that he "walked out the front gate" of the Ohio penitentiary. However, Warden Woodard said the convict hid in a garbage can and left the prison on a truck headed for the London Prison Farm.

USES SYNTHETIC SLATES

BERLIN — German schoolchildren must now try to do their lessons on synthetic slates. As an experiment by the Reich Minister of Education an earlier decree already had recommended use of slates instead of exercise books in order to save paper. Now, under Germany's "four years" self-sufficiency plan, slate also will be saved.
